

The Native Americans vs. the Indigenous People?

By Kenneth Lee

It was a World Series made in heaven: the potent bats of the Cleveland Indians versus the stellar pitching of the Atlanta Braves. But this year's World Series was a nightmare for the politically correct clique because some of them found the team names to be offensive towards Native Americans. The PC crowd excoriated the two teams for their insensitivity and demanded that they change their names. To display our sincere contrition and our commitment to our PC brethren, the Review suggests renaming the following athletic teams:

Before		After
Cleveland Indians	=	Cleveland Indigenous People
Minnesota Vikings	=	Minnesota Norwegian Immigrants
Dallas Cowboys	=	Dallas Indians
(In a typical racist manner, Dallas glorifies only white oppressor cowboys — what about honoring the oppressed — like the Indians?)
New England Patriots	=	New England Flag-Burners
(Dammit, flag-burners are Americans, too.)
Florida Marlins	=	Florida Ichthyo-Americans
Los Angeles Kings	=	Los Angeles Queens
University of Pennsylvania Quakers	=	UPenn Hare Krishna
(UPenn should show reflect more religious diversity)
San Francisco Giants	=	San Francisco Vertically Endowed
(SF denigrates tall people as abnormal 'giants.')
San Diego Padres	=	San Diego Madres (y las chicas)
Minnesota Timberwolves	=	Minnesota Domesticated Dogs
(Timberwolves unfairly suggest savagery)
Miami Dolphins	=	Miami Fish-like but really a Mammal
Notre Dame Fighting Irish	=	Notre Dame Peace-loving, Harmonious and Sober Irish
(Notre Dame unfairly describes all Irish as pugnacious).
